Chapter-1: Introduction

1. Geography of Panchkula

Panchkula is a planned city and which is the Headquarter of the district. The other towns in the district are Barwala, Kalka, Pinjore and Raipur Rani. Besides these towns, there are 259 villages in the district. It forms a part of an adjoining area to the Chandigarh, Mohali and Zirakpur. It is approximately 4 km (2.4 miles) southeast of Chandigarh, 105 km (65 miles) southwest of Shimla, 44 km (27 miles) from Ambala and 259 km (162 miles) northeast of New Delhi, the national capital. It is a part of the Chandigarh capital region or Greater Chandigarh. The Chandigarh-Mohali-Panchkula metropolitan region collectively forms a Chandigarh Tricity, with a combined population of over 2 million. Panchkula district has a sub-tropical continental monsoon climate having, hot summers, cool winters, good monsoon rainfall. It has great variation in temperature (-1 °C to 43 °C). Sometimes winter frost occurs during December and January. The district also receives winter rains from the western disturbance. The rainfall is mostly received in the monsoon. Morni hills constitute the highest point of the district as well as of Haryana. The Ghaggar is the only perennial river, which is very shallow outside of the monsoons. The mountains and hills of Kasauli are clearly visible from Panchkula. The Kaushalya river rises in the Shivalik hills on the border of Haryana and Himachal Pradesh, and flows through Panchkula district and confluences with Ghaggar river near Pinjore just downstream of Kaushalya Dam. Generally, the slope of the district is from north east to south west and in this direction, most of the rivers/streams rain-fed torrents flow down and spread much gravel and pebbles in their beds. Only the Sirsa river, in Kalka Tehsil flows towards the north-west. The soils in the district are mainly light loam. The underground water in the district is generally fresh and suitable for domestic and irrigation purposes. The underground water level is generally high in the southern parts and low in north and north-east which is hilly tract. The district lies in the Himalayas boundary fault zones and earthquakes of moderate to high intensity have occurred in the past. District lies in 30.695202 latitude and 76.854172 longitude. GPS coordinates of the district are 30° 41' 42.7272" N and 76° 51' 15.0192" E. The mean sea level of the district is 337 meters. The total population of the district is 319,398 out of which 173,557 are males and 145,841 are females. Panchkula is the least populous district of Haryana. Rural-urban population distribution is 44:56 in the district.

1.3 Land use pattern of Panchkula district

Population of peripheral area of Panchkula has increased about five times during last three decades. In 1971, population of peripheral controlled area was 84,143 persons inhabiting in 154 villages out of which rural population was 73.92 percent against 26.08 percent of urban population. In 1981, the population of peripheral area increased to 124,604 persons with a decadal growth rate of 48 percent whereas the urban population has increased to 30.78 percent over the corresponding previous decade. In 1991, population further increased to 222,346 persons with a growth rate of 78.6 percent. In the last two decades, increase in population of peripheral area was almost 3 times which may be considered substantial increase by any planning norms. This huge population increase in the area is attributed to establishment of various special government projects like HMT, Chandimandir Cantonment, ITB Complex, Terminal Ballistic Research Laboratory, Panchkula, Urban Estate, and nearness to Chandigarh which experienced tremendous socio-economic and physical development of infrastructure. These factors acted as centripetal force to attract huge number of migrants from neighbouring regions. Broad land use categories which include agricultural and allied activities, built-up, reserve forest, vegetal cover, special area, water bodies, mining and slums were identified as the key factors that influenced the stark changes in this area. It is the fact that agricultural land has been declining continuously and is being replaced by the built up area. The area devoted to agricultural purposes was 43 percent in 1972 which declined to 38 percent during next two decades and further declined to 30 percent in 2008. Despite changes, area under forests has remained stagnant as it is protected by central and state legislations. Interestingly, the area under built-up land has sharply increased. Built-up land was hardly 1 percent in 1972 in the controlled area. Proportion of built up land has increased to 9 percent in 1990 and further to about 18 percent in 2008. The area under built-up use was earlier used as agricultural land. Increase in built up area has taken place because of new planned residential sectors known as Panchkula Urban Estate and increasing urban sprawl due to nearness to capital and good accessibility through network of roads such as NH-22 and Delhi- Chandigarh railway route. Population pressure and strategic location of the district resulted into change in land use. Due to topographical constraints (Ghaggar River) the built-up area has been extended along the Ghaggar River bed and NH-22. Linear urban sprawl has been observed due to the development of HUDA sectors namely 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31 and sector 32, Amravati Enclave and Virat Nagar along NH 22 and River Ghaggar. (Source: Land Use Changes in Haryana Sub-Region of Chandigarh Periphery Controlled Area: A Spatio-Temporal Study by Surjeet Singh Saini and Dr. S.P. Kaushik)

Over the years, land use/land cover pattern is changing continuously as is in other part of the nation due to human needs and activities. The Built-up area is on increasing every day. Area under forest, pastures and waste land is decreasing continuously because more land is brought under construction either for residential purposes or for economic activities. The area under water bodies increased significantly reason being increase use of water in households. Also, economic activities under MNERAGA contributed by digging more ponds. Chiefly, agriculture area, grazing land and wasteland are being converted into built up area. Major reason for this decrease is change in land use particularly for construction.

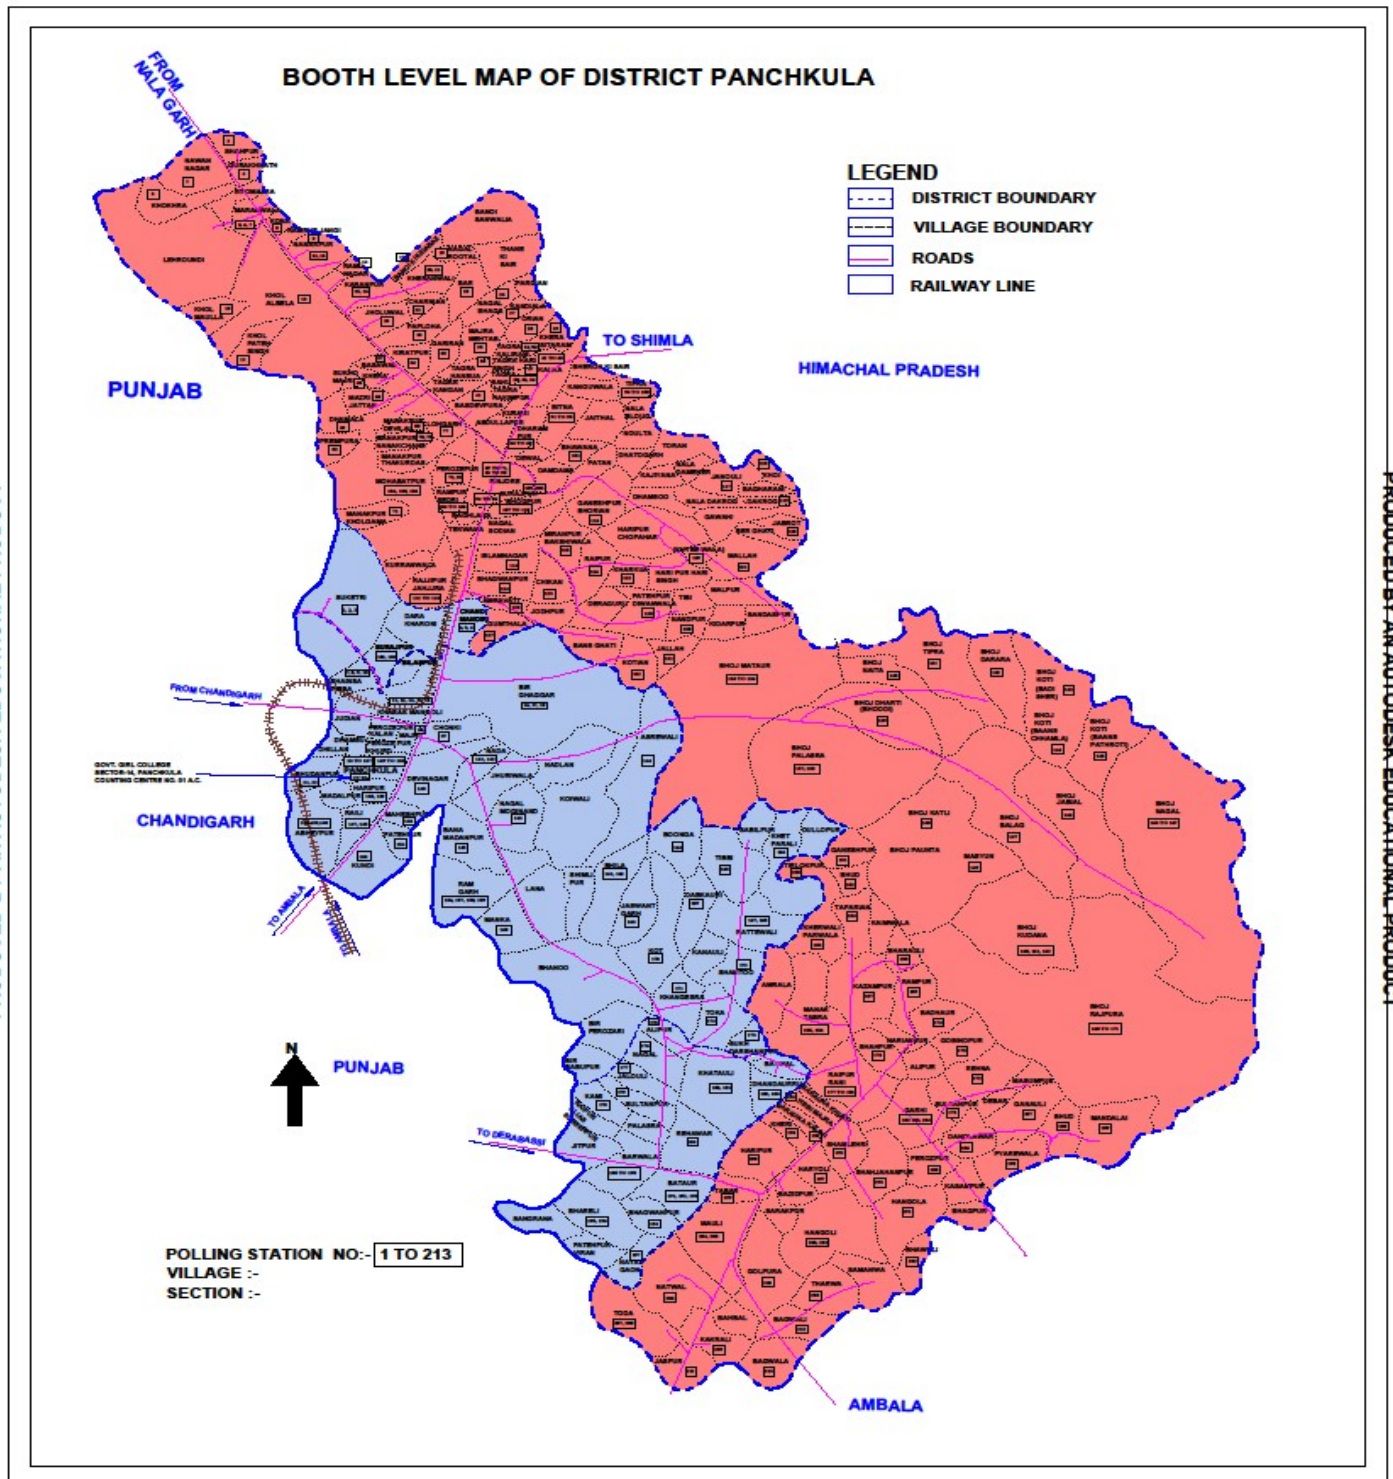

Land Use pattern of the District	Area (in hectare)
Total Geographical Area	89800
Forest Area	1350
Land under non-agricultural use	24287
Permanent pastures	7111
Cultivable waste land	9008

There are 5 drains in the district on which work of a seasonal clearance is under progress and this work will be completed by 15-06-2022. Normally, drainages system is sufficient to contain and outflow of rain water during the season. Flood occurs when downpour is heavy in hilly area of Himachal Pradesh and excess water flows in the district. Other major reason of flood is obstruction and incision of drains, canals, road and natural paths of water flow.

Instances of flash flood have been experienced in the district in year 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016 and 2017 that resulted in loss of human life and landslides. Drains passing through residential area of Urban estate overflows and inundated the habitations.

3.2 Flood risk and causes of Flood Risk
